EXPLANATION FOR ENGLISH READERS.

It is absolutely necessary for English readers to divest themselves of all the irregular and erroneous notions of spelling contracted by using the imperfect alphabet of the English language, and to remember that, in spelling Seneca, the same sound is uniformly associated with each character. Hence, in writing the language, our first object has been to hear correctly the several sounds of which each word is composed, in their order, and then to represent them by their appropriate characters, placed in the same order. The anomalous sounds of the English are so oddly expressed by combinations of characters, and so many letters are introduced which have no honest relation to the sounds, that most persons find it very difficult to lay aside their bad habits and inconsistencies sufficiently to follow our simple truth-telling system of orthography. But be it always remembered, if the reader will take pains to understand, and is able to enunciate, the sounds represented by the several characters, and will distinctly enunciate them, in the order in which they are located, and with their appropriate relative degrees of force and time, and with the natural cadence and inflexion, he will read the language intelligibly, and—abating the errors of the writer and of the printer—with the same accuracy with which it is spoken by the Indian himself. He may call our mode of representing certain sounds very odd; and, if he will not forget the barbarisms of English spelling, he certainly will do so. But no matter for that: if he will only be content to pronounce his words correctly, as they are made ready to his hands, and no otherwise, he will be a correct, and, if he improve his talent rightly, a profitable reader of Seneca; and we have no fears of his condemning our system, after he shall have thoroughly attained the right use of his ears, by listening attentively to the Indian mode of speaking.

The number of sounds in the Indian, with our present knowledge of the language is supposed to be 29, as follows :

Vowel Sounds.
e,	as in the English word	they.
ē,	" " "	bet.
a,	" " "	fall.
ā,	" " "	hāt.
i,	" " "	machine.
ī,	" " "	hit.
o,	" " "	nôte.
ò,	unlike any English letter, half way between 'o' in nôte and 'o' in move.
u,	as in the English word 'push,' or, as 'o' in move.
ū,	like the English letter u in but.

Nasalized vowels are such as have the peculiar nasal twang approximating to the sound produced by joining the letter 'h' to a vowel, remembering not to finish the sound of the 'n,' but only proceed so far as to communicate to the vowel enough of its sound to nasalize it. They are uniformly denoted by a mark like a hyphen (-), placed underneath the vowel, as 'a,' 'ā,' 'e,' 'ē,' 'o,' 'ō,' 'u,' 'ū,' &c. A vowel sound of this sort coming before 'g' or 'k,' coalesces with it, as in the English word 'long.' This word, spelt after the Indian fashion, would be 'l-a-g.' 'Strong,' would be 's-t-r-a-g.' 'Young,' would be written 'y-y-g.' 'Monk,' would be 'm-y-k,' &c.—&c. It is very important for the reader or writer of Seneca to regard very scrupulously this distinction between nasalized and other vowels, for the meaning is often entirely dependent upon it, and there are many nice modifications of the sense which can be given in no other way.

Diphthongs.

ai	like 'i' in	pine.
iū	" " " "	pure.

There are many cases where the English hearer would suppose the sound of the diphthong to be that of ai, but clear attention to its enunciation discovers the closing vowel to be 'e,' 'ā,' or 'ā,' as in 'nac,' which has been often written 'n-a-i,' or the first syllable of 'gāhāh,' which has often been spelled 'g-a-i-n-h.' In the slow and solemn pronunciation of Indian, most or all of the diphthongs may be properly separated into their constituent elements, and each vowel sounded distinctly by itself. Hence, it has not been deemed necessary to adopt any particular mark to designate them; especially, since for the present, and until the mass of the Indians shall be able to read their language fluently, it is thought expedient uniformly to insert a space between the syllables.

The consonants are:

ch,	as in the English word	chin,	beech.
d,	“ “ “	day,	add,
g,	“ “ “	go,	log.
h,	“ “ “	hat,	and at the end of syllables, it always denotes the rough aspirate to be the closing sound.

h, unlike the sound of any English letter.

This letter never precedes a vowel: following one, it should be spoken by giving the vowel an explosive force, and breaking it off suddenly, in such a manner as for the instant to stop the breath entirely, as we often hear white people in hastily pronouncing the interjection Oh! especially, where they repeat it several times in rapid succession, in indicating to a child that it is doing something wrong. This sound is very abundant in Seneca, and, used in conjunction with certain other modifications, the mode and time of verbs, and various other circumstances are denoted by it. Often, also, it forms the chief distinction between words of very dissimilar meaning. No one can read or write Seneca intelligibly, who does not pay the strictest attention to this character, and avoid confounding it with the rough aspirate of the common 'h.'

j,	as in the English word	job.
k,	“ “ “	king,	take.
n,	“ “ “	no,	on.
s,	“ “ “	sun,	nose.
t,	“ “ “	toe,	at.
w,	“ “ “	we.
y,	“ “ “	yonder.

The letters 'j,' 'w,' and 'y,' are heard only before vowels, and 'ch,' is generally, though not always so. The letter 's' is, in a very few instances, slightly softened, so as almost to resemble the sound of 'z' in English. It is also common, in some neighbourhoods, to give it a sort of hissing sound, approaching to that of 'th' in the English word thee, and sometimes hard, as in 'thick,' 'thin.'

There are several combinations of sounds not used in the English language, which sometimes greatly embarrass the learner of Indian orthography, and therefore need particular attention: such as the rough aspirated sound of 'h' following the letters 's,' 't,' and 'y' following 'd,' 'g,' 'k,' 'n,' 's,' &c.; as 'she,' 'shū,' 'sha,' 'sho,' &c., where the 's' and 'h' are sounded separately, and not as in the English words 'show,' 'shake;' 'tho,' 'thū,' 'tha,' 'tho,' where the 't' and 'h' are sounded separately, and not as in the English words 'thaw,' 'thank,' nor as in 'thine,' 'thou,' &c. This peculiarity has sometimes been denoted by inserting an apostrophe between the 's,' or 't,' and 'h,' thus: 'h-o ho,' 's-h-o s'ho;' 'h-o ho,' 't-h-o t'ho,' &c; but we have deemed the use of the apostrophe unnecessary, inasmuch as the English sound of 'th' in 'thin,' 'thee,' &c., is never found in Seneca except in cases where 's,' is corrupted by a lisping mode of speaking, and, the English sound of 'sh' is uniformly represented in Indian by its natural sign 'sy,' as 'y-e ye,' 's-y-e syc,' (English sha;); 'y-o yo,' 's-y-o syo,' (English show), &c. In like manner 'dye,' 'dyā,' 'dya,' 'dyo,' &c.; 'gye,' 'gyā,' 'gya,' 'gyo,' &c.; 'kye,' 'kyā,' 'kya,' 'kyo,' &c.; 'nye,' 'nyā,' 'nya,' 'nyo,' &c., are all pronounced by giving to each letter its natural and legitimate sound in the place where it is located. So, also, in all other cases, it has been our aim to analyze compound sounds, and represent them by the representatives of their simple elements. In some cases three or four consonants will be found to precede a vowel in the same syllable. In English some one or more of them would be silent, but there are no silent letters in the Indian. 'Sgye,' 'sgyo,' 'skya,' 'snyu,' 'sgwa,' 'skwā,' 'tgu,' &c., have every letter sounded distinctly, in its place. A little practice will make all such combinations perfectly easy and natural.

It is not to be supposed that with our imperfect knowledge of Seneca, we have discovered and marked accurately all the peculiarities of the language. It is sometimes, also, very difficult to decide on the correct usage, where there are differences of pronunciation among the Indians. In such cases we have sought for the pure Seneca in contradistinction from the idioms of Mohawk, Cayuga, Onandaga, &c., and for Seneca as spoken by the old men, whose habits were formed previous to the introduction of English ideas, and modifications of ideas, among the people. It is not pretended that no room is left for future improvement. It would be very strange if much should not ultimately be necessary. Suggestions of needed additions or alterations will, therefore, be thankfully received and duly considered; and wherever the correct analysis of the language shall decide in their favour, they will be most gladly adopted.

It has been objected to the system of orthography which we have adopted, that it has a tendency to embarrass the learner by using English letters with French or German sounds attached to the vowels. It should be recollected, however, that each English vowel has so many sounds that they could not be retained without introducing strange jargon into the Seneca. We have given no new sound to any letter. We have followed some one sound of the English vowel in every case, and rejected from necessity all the others. In deciding which to follow and which to reject, we have been influenced mainly by the fact that the Hon. T. Pickering's mode of representing the vowel sounds, which, in the main, we have adopted, has been generally introduced among the Indians of the continent, wherever their languages have been reduced to writing, is approved by the American Board, and corresponds more closely than any other mode of notation, with the usages of the whole civilized world, and no objection can be brought against it which will not bear with equal force against every other system which employs the English letters. Besides, many of the Indians are already in some degree familiar with this system; a much larger number than are familiar with any other; and no other system can become adapted to the correct representation of the Seneca language, on paper without adopting as many variations from the common English as Mr. Pickering and his followers have done. Those who have attempted to write in other ways, are continually finding new marks necessary, and the more they write the more marks they will need, till they have a character exclusively appropriated to each of the sounds contained in the spoken language. Then, and not till then, will their systems have a claim to be regarded perfect. We have endeavoured, in adopting Mr. Pickering's system, to make in the outset, all the additions necessary, to adapt it to all the exigencies of the Seneca, so as to prevent as far as possible, the necessity of future alterations. Till, however, a settled habit of spelling has been established, there will, of course, be variations in orthography corresponding with the various modes in which different individuals speak or hear the same word; but these variations will occasion no serious inconvenience to the reader, any more than to the hearer of a speech, or conversation where they occur in the spoken language. The reader who pronounces as the words are written, and the writer who writes them accurately as they are spoken, will both be sufficiently correct for all purposes of practical utility.

It may not be improper, here to express our earnest hope, that all who have anything to do with Indians, and who are capable of appreciating the value of a written language, will strenuously exert themselves, to hasten forward the time when every Indian shall be fully able to express his own thoughts on paper, and derive his full measure of advantage from the written thoughts of others, and especially from the written Word of God, to whose blessing these incipient efforts to accomplish so desirable an object, are humbly and earnestly commended.

NOTE.

To those who may be inclined to criticise the style of our printing, we would remark, that we have no Italic type, and but one size of Roman letter. Several of the accented capitals, also, are wanting, punches not having been cut for them when the accented type was prepared, in Boston, some years since for printing Seneca. This will explain the breaks in the column of capitals, (in the alphabet,) and many other things which printers would deem irregularities. To furnish ourselves with Italic, and another size of Roman, with the capitals for each, sufficient for our little establishment, would require about $150, before the type could be cast, and the whole expense would vary little from $400; for the want of which, we are obliged to forego the advantages of beauty and variety in the style and execution of our work, and make the best we can of the facilities with which we are provided.

dwa gyah'da di'ant hwus, it draws me, it pulls me along.

dwa gyah'dit gas, it casts me out, it turns me away.

di sa'ya doh, thou didst write it there, or from thence.

dwa gah'saah, I began, I began there.

GRAMMATICAL VARIATIONS.

LESSON LXVI.

Thus far the words have been inserted as they occur in conversation, without regard to grammatical classification.— Hence, in some cases we meet with a great many different forms of the same word, whereas, if we had a list of the changes through which the words pass to express all the variations of meaning, it would have been sufficient to insert the root only, or at most those forms from which other forms or sets of forms may be regarded as derived. Such lists of grammatical changes are equally important to the Indian learning English, and to the White man learning Indian. Some of them will therefore now be given, with as much accuracy as can be attained under existing circumstances. We will commence with the variations of words used as the names of things, or Nouns, as they are called in English Grammar.

I. Variations in Number.

gwën nīs, penny; (a corruption of the English word pence, or pennies, substituting 'gw' for 'p,' the latter not being found in Seneca, and the people in ancient times not being able to pronounce it. The same substitute prevails at the present day among the older Indians in their efforts to speak English.)

gwën nīs'shōh, or gwën nīs'shōh oh, pence.
sga gwën nīs hāād or sga gwën nīs hāūt, one penny, from 'skat,' one, and 'o gwën nīs hāh,' (obsolete), the matter or material of the penny. [Analogy would require us to write 'sgat,' one, instead of 'skat;' or else to say, 'ska gwën nīs hāād' instead of 'sga gwën nīs hāād'; but 'g' and 'k' are often interchanged by the Indians, and so also are 'd' and 't,' and perhaps a few other letters: and therefore it will be our object to get the pronunciation in most common use among the people.]

de ga'gwěn nīs'hā ge,	two pennies.
sāh' ni ga'gwěn nīs'hā ge,	three pennies.
ge ih' ni ga'gwěn nīs'hā ge,	four pennies, (and so on for all higher numbers.)

o góos hāh.	the pound weight.
o góos hāh shoh,	pound weights.
sga góos hāād,	one pound.
de ga'goos hā ge,	two pounds.
sāh ni ga'goos hā ge,	three pounds, &c.

wā nīs'hāh,	day.
wā nīs'hāh shoh, or, wā nīs hāh shoh'oh,	days.
swā nīs'hāād,	one day.
de wā nīs hā ge,	two days.
sāh ni wā nīs hā ge,	three days, &c.

Note.—The 'k' or 'g,' in 'skat' or 'sgat,' seems to be dropped, in words commencing with 'w.'

o qh'dah,	ear.
o qh'dah shoh, or o qh'dah shoh'oh,	ears.
ju qh'daad,	one ear.
de yu'qh da ge,	two ears.
sāh ni yu'qh da ge,	three ears, &c.

oh'nyah,	finger.
oh'nyah shoh (or—shoh'oh),	fingers.
júoh nyaat,	one finger.
de oh'nya ge,	two fingers.
sāh ne yuh'nya ge,	three fingers.

Note.—It appears to be a pretty general rule, as in the last two examples to begin the distributive singular with 'j,' instead of 'sk' or 'sg,' in the words which commence with 'o.'

Compounds of 'ga deh' form their plural by adding 'nyoh,' as,

wǎ nis'hǎ deh,
wǎ nis'hǎ de'nyoh,

day,
days.

o non'da deh,
o non'da de'nyoh,

hill or mountain,
hills or mountains.

Perhaps, however, the syllable 'nyoh' should be regarded as a verbal suffix, denoting the things to be in a close connexion with each other, or the actions to be repeated in close succession to each other, as it is joined to verbs nearly or quite as frequently as to nouns. Before taking on this suffix, and indeed any other, words ending in 'h,' are softened by dropping the 'h.'

The plural of things having life, or capable of performing actions, is often formed as in many verbs, by prefix-
'a di,' 'ha di,' 'wa di,' or 'na di,' to the noun;—
though perhaps in such cases there is a change in the nature of the noun, so that it partakes of the nature of a verb, as,

go wa nǎh,

something great (or simply, great.)

a di go wa nǎs.

great ones, chiefs.

na di go wa nǎs.

the great ones, chiefs.

ha di go wa nǎs.

they are great ones, chiefs.

hah sǎ nǒ wa nǎh,

chief, (i. e., he who has a great name, from

'gah'sǎ nǎh,' name,

and 'go wa nǎh,' great.

ha dil'sǎ nǒ wa nǎs,

they are chiefs, they have great names.

[The 's' at the end, is also a sign of the plural, but it is frequently used in words which do not take on this prefix.]

ha yah'da deh,	he, him.
ha di'yah da deh,	they, them.

The suffix 'shoh,' or 'shoh'oh,' which forms the indefinite or unlimited plural is frequently applied to words after they have taken on other suffixes, as,

os'oh'dah,	hand,
os oh'dah geh,	at or on the hand,
os oh'dah geh shoh,	at or on the hands.

This last form is however generally spoken 'os oh'dah gis'hoh.'

os oh'da deh,	hand,
os oh'da de nyoh,	hands, (see note on 'ga-deh,' below.)

Recapitulation of the Variations of Number.

o soh'dah,	hand,
ju soh'daat,	one hand, (Sometimes, though rarely, 'sgas-oh'daat.)
de yus'oh da ge,	two hands,
sah ni yus'oh da ge,	three hands, &c.

Note.—'y' is generally inserted before all words commencing with 'o,' when they take on a prefix, and the 'o' is generally changed into 'u.'

os oh'dah'shoh, (or—shoh oh),	hands.
os oh'dah geh,	at or on the hand.
os oh'dah gis'hoh,	at or on the hands.
os oh'da deh,	the hand is there.
os oh'da de nyoh,	the hands are there.

Note.—It is very difficult to define in English the precise meaning of 'ga deh' and its compounds. The true idea can only be acquired by use. There being nothing in the notions of White people exactly corresponding with it. It implies the idea of existence, occupying space or extent, being an object of sense or perception; thus, we say,

o yah'dah,
ha yah'da deh,

body.
his body is in existence,
(i. e. in some definite place or position.)

ǎ ga yěnt ha yah'da deh,

it will strike him, (i. e. it will strike where his body is occupying space; is being in existence as a perceptible object.

It is said to be more properly applied to things which stand out in relief, as it were; or which project from, or stand up upon something, as,

gah ǎ'yǎh,
gah ǎn deh,

fence or fortification.
the fence is standing up
from the ground, &c., or rises from the ground, &c. hill or mountain.

o non'dah,
o non'da deh,

the mountain exists, rising &c.

But it does not appear to be always restricted in its application to conspicuous objects, though perhaps it conveys the idea of relative prominence when applied to objects ever so minute.

'nyoh' is added also to many nouns and to various forms of verbs to denote the idea of succession in order one after another, and might with propriety be termed the distributive plural suffix. Sometimes for euphony the 'h' is changed into 'h,' as.

wǎ nǐs'hǎ deh,

day.

wă nîs'hă de nyoh,
 oh hăh'syoh,
 oh hăh'syoh nyoh,

days in succession.
 dawn of day.
 daily, day after day, (i. e.
 dawn after dawn, or morning after morning.

The prefix 'hah de,' is also used as a sort of distributive, but definitely including all the class spoken of in the distribution, as,

hah'de wă nîs'hă ge,

every day, i. e. all the days, one by one, successively.

hah'do yo gweh'da ge,

every person, i. e. all the persons one by one, or one after another.

But in order to have this effect, it seems to be necessary that it should be prefixed to that form of the plural which ends in 'ge,' for when prefixed to words ending in 'ăh,' it signifies only the half of the thing, as,

hah'de wă nîs'hă ăh,

half a day, or at the middle of the day.

hah'de ga wis'da ăh,

half a cup full, &c.

Some words form the plural by adding 's' or 'hs' to the singular, as,

wi yu,
 ne wi yulis,

good.
 the good things,

ho gweh'di yu,
 hă nŏ'gweh dî'yuh,s,

he is a good man.
 they are good men:

go wa'năh,
 go wa'năs,

great.
 great things.

Sometimes the 's' is inserted between the parts of the word, in the same manner as the parts of words are interfixed where two or more words are compounded together, as,

ni wahi'aah,
ni wahi'saah,

little,
little things.

This form is most frequent in words having a verbal or an adjective signification, or in words compounded with a verb or an adjective, and seems to indicate that the quality or action is habitual, or at least frequently repeated; but there are cases where the object seems to be simply to denote the plural number.

From what has been said it appears that, in Seneca there are three numbers: 1st, singular; 2d, dual; 3d, plural; and that the forms of these vary as they are regarded distributively, successively, or collectively. In the sequel it will appear that some of these forms admit of changes to indicate past, remote past, present, future, and remote future time. but as all these changes have a sort of verbal idea about them, they will be omitted till we come to speak of Verbs.

II. Variations in Gender.

There are five genders in Seneca. 1st, Masculine; 2d, Feminine; 3d, Common; 4th, Neuter; 5th, Animal.

The Masculine and Feminine, are similar in import to the same genders in other languages, and always strictly confined to the male and female of the human family.

The Common gender is used when a promiscuous multitude, or those whose sex is not known, are spoken of, and its form is always feminine; hence, the Feminine is said to be the ruling gender in Seneca, as the Masculine is in English.

The Neuter gender is applied to those things and those only, which are destitute of animal life.

The Animal gender is confined to living beings not belonging to the human family. A few words appear to have both Masculine and Feminine forms for this gender, but ordinarily the sex, when distinguished, is denoted by the addition of some word for that purpose. The younger Indians, whose language has been modified by their intercourse with the Whites, not unfrequently apply the same forms which denote the male and female of the human species, to animals, but the older Indians regard this as a corruption of their language.

The genders are all formed by prefixes placed immediately before the simplest form of the noun. If other prefixes, e. g., those denoting number, are used before the same word, they must not be suffered to come in and crowd those denoting gender out of their places, but must content themselves with being prefixed to them.

Examples.

Q'gweh, human being, person ; (applied also to the beings of other worlds.)

ho'gweh, he is a man.

ya go'gweh, she is a woman.

ha ji'noh, he is a man, he is manlike.

ye ji'noh, she is a man, i. e., a masculine woman ; but in composition with other words, 'ye ji'noh' often denotes simply the sex without regard to the character of masculinity.

ye'oh, woman, she is a woman ; (probably a contraction of 'ye ji'noh.') ga ji'noh, male animal ; (applied to beast, bird, fish, insect, of every description.)

ge'oh, female animal, of whatever sort.

de i'ji noh, two males.

de gi'ji noh, two masculine women.

ha di'ji noh, three or more men.

wa dǐ'ji nǒh, three or more masculine women.

Note.—The 'h' at the commencement of all words of this description, seems to have somewhat of a verbal force, in addition to denoting gender; and 'a'dǐ'ji nǒh,' and 'na'dǐ'ji nǒh,' may perhaps be regarded as referring to the sex while 'ha dǐ'ji nǒh,' rather declares that the men are manly in their conduct or character; literally they are men, with such an emphasis on the word 'men' as will contrast it with the absence of manly qualities; or it strongly affirms the sex where it had been supposed to be the other.

wa dǐ'ji nǒh, is sometimes applied to animals. Indeed the Feminine and Animal genders are very frequently the same, especially in the plural number.

je yah'daad, one woman.

sga yah'daad, one animal; from 'o yah'dah,' body, and 'skat,' one. But the vowel in the first syllable of the masculine and animal forms, is very often pronounced as if written 'shai,' or 'sgai.'

de i'yvs he, or de ni'yvs he, two men.

de gi'yvs he, two women.

de gai'yvs he, two animals. But 'de gi'yvs he' is not unfrequently applied to animals, especially by the younger Indians.

ni wah'aah, little thing.

ni yah'aah, little boy, (or man.)

ni ya'gah áah, little girl.

ni a'gah áah, little creature.

ni wvs'aah, little things.

ni á'nahs áah, little folks, (masculine.)

ni wá'nahs áah, little folks, (feminine and animal.)

hak sah'aah, male child, boy.

yik sah'aah, girl,
 de ik'sah áah, two boys.
 de gik'sah áah two girls.
 ha dik'sah shoh'oh, boys, (more than two.)
 wa dik'sah shoh'oh, girls, (more than two.)

But masculine dual and plural are applied also where a part of those included are females, and even in cases where but a single individual is a male.

ot wus'aah, one little one; (applied to the young of animals.)
 o dit'was shoh'oh, little ones, (three or more.)

It has been remarked that some words commencing with 'o' form the distributive singular by prefixing 'j' instead of 'sg,' and suffixing 'd' or 't;' as,

oh ne'yañ, bone.
 juh ne'yaat, one bone.

Perhaps this should be regarded as a solitary instance in Seneca, of what is so common in many languages, the application of the feminine gender to things which, philosophically regarded, should be called neuter.

III. Variations of Person.

These, in Seneca, are all accomplished by prefixes, for the purpose of distinguishing the person speaking, the person addressed, and the person spoken of; as,

o'gweh, man, person, being.
 go'gweh, I am a man, person, &c. ; or perhaps better, I, who am a man, &c.
 so'gweh, thou man, &c.
 ho'gweh, he, the man, or he is a man, &c.
 ya go'gweh, she, the person, the woman, &c.
 deh'ho'gweh, we two persons; (speaking together) de yak'no'gweh, we two persons, (speaking to another.)

dēs'no gwel, you two persons.
 dee'no gwel, they two persons, (masculine.)
 de'kno gwel, they two persons, (feminine.)
 dyo'gwel, we persons, (more than two, speaking together.)
 a gyo'gwel, we persons, (speaking to another.)
 jo'gwel, you people, or persons.
 nã'no gwel, or hiã'no gwel, they people, or persons; masculine.
 wã'no gwel, they people, or persons; feminine.

So also in compound words; as,

o'gwel, person.
 o'gwel'dah, person, regarded as substance, or matter; the material, so to speak, of personal existence; and applicable to character, when compounded with words denoting character.
 o'gwel'di yu, good person; ('o'gwel'dah,' and 'wi'yu,' good.)
 go'gwel'di yu, I am a good person:
 so'gwel'di yu, thou art a good person.
 ho'gwel'di yu, he is a good person.
 ya go'gwel di yu, she is a good person.
 deh hno'gwel di yu, we two are good persons; (speaking together.)
 de yak'no'gwel di yu, we two are good persons; (speaking to others.)
 dēs'no'gwel di yu, you two are good persons.
 dee'no'gwel di yu, they two are good men.
 de'kno'gwel di yu, they two are good women.
 dyo'gwel'di yu, we are good people; (speaking together.
 But this form is nearly obsolete, the following word being substituted in its place.)
 a gyo'gwel di yu, we are good people, (speaking to others, and often, also, used instead of the preceding word.)
 jo'gwel'di yu, you are good people.
 nã'no'gwel di yu, and hiã'no'gwel di yu, they are good people; masculine.
 wã'no'gwel di yu, they are good people; feminine. *

In translating Indian into English the verb may be omitted in all these cases, if the construction of the English demands it.

IV. Variations of Nouns to express the idea of Property or Possession.

Os oh'dah, hand.
 gis oh'dah, my hand.
 sis oh'dah, thy hand.
 has oh'dah, his hand.
 yes oh'dah, her hand.
 gus oh'dah, her hand; (more definite than the preceding word, generally referring to some particular person who is the subject of the conversation.)
 gas oh'dah, its hand.
 dyas oh'dah, our hand; dual; (speaking together.)
 a gyes'oh'dah, our hand; dual; (speaking to another.)
 jas oh'dah, your hand, dual;
 yas'oh'dah, their hand; dual masculine,
 wa es'oh'dah, their hand; dual feminine.
 dwas oh'dah, our hand; plural; (speaking together.)
 o gwas'oh'dah, our hand; plural; (speaking to others.)
 swas oh'dah, your hand; plural.
 ha dis'oh'dah, their hand; plural masculine.
 wa dis'oh'dah, their hand; plural feminine or animal.
 o dis'oh'dah, their hand; animal.

The same forms are used for the personal possessive distinctions when suffixes are added for any purpose, or the word joined in composition with other words; as,

gis oh'dah gēh, at or on my hand,
 sis oh'dah gēh, at or on thy hand, &c.

gis oh'da deh, my hand appears,
 sis oh'da deh, thy hand appears, &c.

gis oh'dah shoh, (or—'shoh'oh,') my hands.

sis oh' dah shoh, &c., thy hands, &c.

gis oh'di yu, my good hand,
sis oh'di yu, thy good hand, &c.

Words which end in 'ääh' change it into 'áah' in the first person singular, possessive ; as,

gah'hi gwääh, cap or hat.
a gih'hi gwáah, my cap or hat.
sah'hi gwääh, thy cap or hat, &c.

gah'syi gwääh, spear or fork ; any instrument having tines.
a gih'syi gwáah, my spear.
sah'syi gwääh, thy spear, &c.

hah'nih, my father ; (speaking of him.)
hah'ni', my father ; (speaking to him.)
goh'nih, I am thy father ; or, I, thy father ; (but this word is used by some in directly the opposite sense ; as, thou, my father.)

yah'nih, thy father.

hoh'nih, his or her father.

oh'nih, its father.

she dih'nih, our father ; dual ; (speaking together.)

sha gih'nih, our father ; dual ; (speaking to others.)

she jih'nih, your father ; dual.

no wah'nih, their father ; both dual and plural.

sho dwa'h'nih, our father ; plural ; (speaking among ourselves.)

sha'gwa'h'nih, our father ; (speaking to others.)

gwa'h'ni'h', our father ; (speaking to him.)

she swah'nih, your father.

go dih'nih, their father ; feminine ; (i. e., they females.)

sha go'dih'nih, his fathers, or he, their father.

ho wan'dih'nih, their father.

ho dih'nih, their father.

o dih'nih, their father ; animal, dual, and plural.

ak hih'nih, our fathers ; plural.

e thi'nih, our fathers ; dual.
 e chih'nih, your fathers ; plural.
 gah nis'hah, fathership, the parental relation.
 on da'deh nih, father.

he'a wak, my son ; (speaking of him.)
 ke'a wak, my daughter ; (speaking of her.) go'a wak, my son, my child ; either male or female. Sometimes also, 'he'a wak,' and 'ke'a wak,' with the accent on the last syllable, (as is usual in addressing any one,) are addressed to the son or daughter ; but this is bad Seneca.

heh'sha a wak, thy son.
 she'a wak, thy daughter.
 ya'a wak, thou art his son.
 no'a wak, his son.
 sha go'a wak, his daughter.
 no wa'wak, her son.
 go'a wak, her daughter.
 o'a wak, its son or daughter.
 she di'a wak, our son ; dual ; (speaking among ourselves.)
 sa gi'a wak, our son ; dual ; (speaking to others.)
 she ji'a wak, your son ; dual.
 ak hi'a wak, our daughter ; dual, and plural ; (speaking of her to others.)
 gi'a wak, our son or daughter ; dual vocative.
 e thi'a wak, our daughter ; dual and plural ; (speaking together of her.)
 e chi'a wak, your daughter ; dual.
 she dwa'a wak, our son ; plural ; (speaking together.)
 sha gwa'a wak, our son ; (speaking to others.)
 she swa'a wak, your son ; plural.
 go di'a wak, their daughter ; feminine.
 sha go'di a wak, their daughter ; masculine, dual, and plural.
 ho wan'di a wak, her sons.
 yon dat'ha wak, or, non dat'ha wak, daughter.
 ya dat'ha wak, father and son, or father and daughter, or,
 mother and son ; (spoken of together.)
 gya dat'ha wak, mother and daughter ; (spoken of together.)

ja dat'ha wak, your daughter or son ; dual.
 ok hi'a wak, she is our mother ; (i. e., we, (dual and plural,) are her children ; speaking to others.)

The preceding forms are used in the common intercourse of life, but the plural of 'yon dat'ha wak,' is seldom used except in the sittings of the Six Nations' Council ; as,

dwa dat'ha wak, our son or daughter ; (speaking together.)
 a gwa'dat ha wak, our son or daughter ; (speaking to others.)
 swa dat'ha wak, your son or daughter.
 hã non'dat ha wak, their son or daughter ; but all denoting the relationship existing between the different tribes of the confederacy: Probably, however, in ancient times, the words were in common use as applied to the domestic relations, in the same manner as the other forms are at the present day.

noh'yãh, my mother, (speaking of her.)
 noh'yãh, my mother, (speaking to her.)
 sa noh'ãh, thy mother.
 ho noh'ãh, his mother.

 she swah'sòt, your,—plural,—grandfather.

hak nòh'sāh, my uncle.
 ya nòh'sāh, thy uncle.
 ho nòh'sāh, his uncle.
 o nòh'sāh, her, or its uncle.
 she dī'nòh sāh, our, (dual,) uncle; (speaking together.)
 sha gī'nòh sāh, our, (dual,) uncle; (speaking to others.)
 gi nòh'sāh', our, (dual,) uncle; (speaking to him.)
 she jī'nòh sāh, your, (dual,) uncle.
 she dwa'nòh sāh, our, (plural,) uncle; (speaking together.)
 sha gwa nòh sāh, our, (plural,) uncle; (speaking to others.)
 she swa'nòh sāh, your, (plural,) uncle.
 ho wā nòh sāh, their, (fem., dual and plural,) uncle.

So also, for the most part are declined the following names of relationship; viz.,

a'ge hak, my aunt, my father's sister;

a gāāh'seēh, or, a gyāāh'seēh, my cousin ;
 a gya'dyioh, my brother or sister-in-law ;
 a gya'nyeh, my,—fem.—sister-in-law.
 ke nok, my relative ; (applied to blood relations)
 ke ya'deh, my grand-daughter ;
 a'ga dā'oh, my friend ;
 ke nōh', my step-daughter ;
 ke sah', my daughter-in-law ;
 ke yā'o wan dāh, my niece, (i. e., my sister's daughter) hak nōh'is, my step-father ;
 ak ne'hoos, my father or mother-in-law ;
 a gāh'ni-eh, my uncle's wife.
 knā wah'shāh, the family, or household, of my wife.

But words which commence with the dual prefix 'de,' take on that prefix before all other grammatical changes ; as, de'ya gya dā'non de, my brother or sister, without respect to age ; (speaking of him, or her.) [or her...]

 de dya'dā non de, my brother or sister ; [speaking to him] de ja'dā non de, thy brother or sister.
 de ya'dā non de, his brother or sister.
 de gya'dā non de, her sister.
 de dwa'dā non de, our brothers ; (speaking together.)
 de ya'gwa dā'non de, our brothers ; (speaking to others.)
 de swa'dā non de, your brother or brethren.
 de'ā non dā'non de, their brethren.
 de wā'non dā'non de, their sisters ; (applied also to animals.)

Perhaps, however, the better way to interpret these words is, to give them a verbal signification in all cases ; as de ya'gya dā'non de, we two are brothers.

 de ja'dā non de, you two are brothers ; &c.

Among the Indians, all the father's brothers are called fathers, and his sisters, aunts ; all the mother's sisters, mothers, and her brothers, uncles. So also, with grandfather's and grandmother's brothers and sisters.

ho'no hah', they, them, they themselves.
o'no hah', they, themselves; (animals.)

The remaining forms of this word appear to have been anciently in use, but are now only retained in composition; as, a qoh'hah'ge'ah, I alone.

soh'hah'ge'ah, thou alone.
ha oh'hah'ge'ah, he alone.
ga oh'hah'ge'ah, she alone.

ok'noh'hah'ge'ah, we two alone.
soh'hah'ge'ah, you two alone.
ho noh'hah'ge'ah, they two alone.
knoh'hah'ge'ah, they two—fem.—alone.
dyoh'hah'ge'ah, we alone; (speaking together.)
a gyoh'hah'ge'ah, we alone; (speaking of ourselves.)
joh'hah'ge'ah, you alone.
ho no'hah'ge'ah, they alone.
wa noh'hah'ge'ah, they alone; (feminine or animal.)

The letter 'w' is often inserted after 'h' in the third syllable of 'ha oh'hah'ge'ah,' and 'ga oh'hah'ge'ah;' as, ha oh'hwah'ge'ah,' &c. But the old Indians call this a modernism.

3.—gyah'da deh, I, me.
syah'da deh, thou, thee.
hah'da deh, he, him.
yah'da deh, she, her.
oyah'da deh, or, gah'da deh, it; (animal.)

di yah'da deh, we two; (speaking together.)
a gi'yah'da deh, we two; (speaking of ourselves.)
ji'yah'da deh, you two.
hi'yah'da deh, they two; [masculine.
gi'yah'da deh, we two; [feminine.

This word, though called a pronoun, and, for the most part, so translated, is not strictly such. It is a compound, made up of 'o yah'dah,' (body,) and its variations, and 'ga deh,' (it appears, it stands out as an object tangible to the senses.) Hence it frequently has a verbal signification; as, ha yah'da deh Na'wën ni'yuh, God is in existence; or, there is a God.

 a'dih gwah' ha yah'da deh Na'wën ni'yuh, whether or not there is a God, &c.

11. Relative Pronouns.

There are no words in Seneca, which in all respects correspond with who, which, what, and that; but the following, in some of their uses, approximate so nearly to the signification of these words as to entitle them to be called relative pronouns; viz:

neh, this, that.

ne ne, the thing which, or the person who, what.

neh huh', the thing which.

nän'dah, this, that; the thing which.

he'ö weh, the place where; the thing which; what.

ho'ö weh, and ne ho'ö weh, the place where; the thing which; or, in respect to which.

hi gä, or, ho i'gä, that thing which it is.

nän da'i gä, this here thing which it is.

The 'gä,' in these two words, has the force of the verb 'to be.' Both of them may be applied to persons as well as things.

None of these words are declinable: and in some of their uses they all, except 'ne ne,' conform more closely with the nature of adverbs, or demonstrative pronouns, than with relatives.

III.—Demonstrative, or, as they are sometimes called, Definitive Pronouns.

neh, this, that, the thing, the very thing, (or person.)

neh huh', this, that; this thing; that thing; that place.

năn'dah, this, this thing.

i'gã, this, this it is.

hi'gã, this it is, that it is.

ho i'gã, that there thing it is; (sometimes applied to persons as well as things. See also the note under this word in the preceding article.)

si'gã, or, syi'gã, that there thing or person.

si'dah, or, syi'dah, that there thing. (These two words are compounded of 'si,' (look, behold, see,) and 'gã,' (it is,) and 'dah,' (there,) and they are applied to objects at a little distance, but always to things in sight. So also, of the next word.)

si da'i gã, or, syi da'i gã, that there thing it is.

ho da'i gã, that there thing it is; (spoken of objects at a distance; or on the other side in cases of contrast; and sometimes applicable to things out of sight as well as in sight.)

năn da'i gã, this here thing it is; (sometimes applied to persons.)

Most of these words are frequently used as Relative Pronouns.

IV.—Interrogative Pronouns.

sə? or, sə oh'? who? who is it?

sə'năh òt? who? what person is it?

a'? or, ah'? and sometimes a'? what?

a'năh òt? what? what is it?

sə'năh òh'dăh ăh? who? which person? who is it?

a'năh òh'dăh ăh? what? what is it?

səndih gwa'năh òt? whoever? whosoever?

a'dih gwa'năh òt? whatever? whichever?

səndih gwa'năh òh'dăh ăh? whoever? whosoever?

a'dih gwa'nah òh'dāh āh ? whatever ? whichever ?

These last six forms are also used without an interrogation, when a supposition is made, or something is affirmed conditionally ; as, 'sɔ'nah òh'dāh āh nā ye'yěnt huh' ó'gwe nyoh nā ya'gus ha'ek, ná ye'yěnt' hwa guh.' 'if any one shall sow,' or, 'whosoever shall sow, he may expect to reap,' &c.

The suffix 'dāh āh,' in these words appears to have a verbal meaning nearly equivalent to 'it is,' or, 'it may be.'

The suffix 'nah òt,' is frequently pronounced as if written 'nah a'òt.' It is difficult to give the exact force of it in an English definition. Sometimes it seems to imply, 'the material of which any thing is composed ;' and sometimes it specifies or particularizes the person or thing, as in contradistinction from all other persons or things. It is used by itself, or rather, as a suffix to the pronoun 'neh,' in the expression 'neh'nah òt,' or 'neh nah a'òt,' which means, 'the thing or material which it is,' 'this kind or sort of thing,' &c.

The forms 'son'dih gwa'nah òt,' &c., are compounded with 'a'dih gwah,' 'whether ; it may be so, or not.'

do ? how ? how many ? how much ?
 ga'ā ? or, ga'āh' ? where ? what ? in what place ?
 ga'ā ni gaah' ? which ?
 ga'ā o weh' ? where ? at what place ? where is it ?
 ga'ā gwa' ? in what direction ? where ? whither ?

These words seem to be interrogative adverbs, but they are inserted here because the Indians often use them with a pronominal signification.

In all cases where a question is asked, the accent is thrown upon the last syllable : and sometimes this peculiarity is extended to all the important words, even to the close of the sentence, however long or however complicated it may be.

V.—Possessive Pronouns.

a ga'wāh, my, mine.

sa'wāh, thy, thine.

ho'wāh, his.

go'wāh, hers.

o'wāh, its.

ok nī'a wāh, ours; (dual, speaking together.) seldom used.

o gya'wāh, ours; (dual, speaking to a third person. Sometimes, also, used when speaking together.)

ja'wāh, yours, (dual.)

o gwa'wāh, ours, (plural, speaking together.)

a gwa'wāh, ours, (plural, speaking to a third person.)

swa'wāh, yours, (plural.)

ho na'wāh, theirs, (dual and plural masculine.)

o na'wāh, theirs, (dual and plural, feminine, and animal.)

When it is intended to give emphasis to the idea of possession, or to contrast the possessor with others, the personal pronouns are prefixed; as,—'so'naḥ òh'dāh āh' go'wāh hi gā?' 'who is the particular person to whom this belongs?' Answer:—'Ih a ga'wāh;' 'it is mine.'

VI.—Distributive Pronouns.

It is believed that there are no separate words in Seneca which correspond precisely with the English words, each, every, either, and neither. Those which make the nearest approach to the signification of these words, are,

gat gaah', any, any one, either.

ga'ān di gwa'ni gaah, any one, either, whichever, whicheversoever.

The idea of distribution is commonly expressed by changes in the principle word; generally by suffixes, but sometimes by both suffixes and prefixes; as,

1.—By the suffix 'shq̄h.'

skat, one.

skas'shq̄h', one by one, singly, or one at a time.

dek nī'shq̄h, two at a time, or two by two.

sāh'shq̄h', three at a time, or three by three.

jō gwēh'daad, one person ;

jō gwēh'da shq̄h', one person at a time.

swā nīs'hāād, one day ;

swā nīs'hāā shq̄h', one day at a time, daily.

oh gāās'ah, evening ;

oh gāās shq̄h, or oh gāās'sq̄h, each evening, evening by evening.

Sometimes the noun is repeated, as, 'oh gāās'sq̄h oh-gāās'ah.'

2.—By the suffix 'nq̄h.'

de ga'āh sā'q̄h gwaḥ, that on account of which praise should be given ;

de ga'āh sā'q̄h gwa'nq̄h, the matters on account of which praise should be given, separately considered, or one by one.

de yu'da gwa'ih dq̄h, it is spread out, stretched, expanded ;

de yu'da gwa'ih da'nq̄h, the things are spread out, stretched, expanded, one after another.

de wa'di yu'gwaḥ dq̄h, something published, spread abroad ;

de wa'di yu'gwaḥ da'nq̄h, matters published, notices spread abroad, one after another.

In these and similar cases, the syllable next preceding the suffix is generally, if not always, made to terminate in the lengthened sound of 'a,' and accented.

3.—By the suffix 'nyoh.'

yus'hă deh, the year; (see note on 'ga deh,' pp. 78 & 79;)
 yus hă'de nyoh, the years separately considered, one after another.

de ga'ăh sa oh, glory, praise, honour,
 de ga'ăh să o nyoh, glories, praises, honours, one after another.

This suffix makes the distributive plural form of a great number of verbs; and sometimes it seems to be used for the plural, without any idea of distribution, or separation between the several actions included in the word to which it is appended. See note on the bottom of p. 79.

4.—By the suffix 'syoh,' or 'syooh.'

de ye'gah să nis hăh'syoh, the tears are dropping one after another from her eyes.

dyòt gwăh'saih'syooh, the blood is flowing in many successive places.

Sometimes the suffix 'nyoh,' is added to 'syoh,' either to give greater intensity to the meaning, or to extend it to many similar cases, one after another; as,

de ye'gah să nis hăh'syo nyoh, the tears are dropping profusely one after another from her eyes; or, the tears are dropping, one after another from the eyes of many persons, separately considered.

In this and similar cases, the 'h' is dropped for the sake of euphony. This suffix, ('syoh,') is added to verbs even more exclusively than 'nyoh,' and like 'nyoh,' it seems often to be employed simply to denote the plural number.

5.—By changing the syllable 'dah,' at the end of words, into

'di,' after having thrown off the 'deh,' in words compounded with 'ga deh.'

gyah'da deh, I, me; from 'gyah dah,' (my body,) and 'ga-deh.'

gyah'di, I alone, I by myself.

syah'di, thou alone, thou by thyself.

ha yah'di, he alone, he by himself.

ye yah'di, she alone, she by herself.

ga yah'di, it alone, it by itself; &c.

Perhaps, however, this form, instead of being made by changing 'dah' into 'di,' is to be traced to the following.

dya'di, we two are together by ourselves; (speaking together.)

a gya'di, we two are together by ourselves; (speaking to others.)

ja'di, you two are together by yourselves.

ya'di, they two,—masculine—are together by themselves.

gya'di, they two,—feminine and animal—are together by themselves.

[These forms are generally used with the dual prefix 'de ;' as follows :

de dya'di, de ya'gya di, de ja'di, de ya di, de gya'di.]

dwa'di, we,—plural—are together by ourselves, (speaking together.)

a gwa'di, we,—pl'ural—are together by ourselves, (speaking to others.)

swa'di, you,—plural—are together by yourselves.

hã'nan di, they,—plu. masculine—are together by themselves.

wã'nan di, they,—plu. feminine, and animal—are together by themselves.

[These forms are frequently preceded by the syllable 'ni,' probably taken from the word 'ni yq,' (quantity, number,) and always referring to the number of the persons spoken of, as follows :

ni dwa'di, ni ya'gwadi, ni swa di', ni ũ'nan di, ni wã'-nan di.

And not unfrequently the dual prefix 'de,' is used with the plural ; as,

de dwa'di, de swa'di, we, or you, are together ; &c.

Sometimes, however, it is pronounced as if written 'di,' instead of 'de,' and may therefore be derived from some root of a different signification, which cannot now be traced ; but which, with a thousand other things to which the attention of the interpreters has never been directed, a more perfect knowledge of the language may be expected to reveal.]

The expression is often made more emphatic by the addition of 'sho,' (only ;) as, 'gyah'di'sho, I only ; I by myself alone ; &c. And the emphasis may be still further increased by prefixing 'hah de,' which seems to have the force of 'just,' 'exactly,' 'even,' 'every ;' (see p. 80.) as, hah'de gyah'di'sho, just by myself alone ; absolutely alone ; entirely alone ; &c.

The 'e' in the second syllable of this prefix is sometimes dropped by contraction when the next syllable commences with a vowel ; and when the vowel is preceded by 'h,' this letter is thrown out in order that the contraction may take place ; as, hah'da'ya'h di'sho, instead of hah'de ha yah'di'sho, he by himself ; absolutely alone ; &c.

Some of these words take on verbal prefixes and suffixes, so as to convey the idea of action and causation ; as,

hoh'tsgyah'dis, thou makest me to be by myself alone.
 hoh'chgyah'dis dōh, or better, hah de'sgyah dis'dōh, thou causedst me to be by myself alone, &c. This matter will be more fully explained in the article upon verbal prefixes and suffixes.

6.—By the suffix 'a'dyieh.'

de wā'nīs hū ge, two days.
 de wā'nīs hū'ge a'dyieh, two days by two days in succession,
 i. e. successive periods of two days each; once in two days.
 sāh ni wā'nīs hū'ge, three days.
 sāh ni wā'nīs hū'ge a'dyieh, successive periods of three days each; once in three days; &c.

So also,

sāh ni yō'gweh da'ge a'dyieh, three persons by three persons; successive companies of three persons each; &c. ye yah'di a'dyieh, she by herself and she by herself, i. e. person by person, one at a time.

This suffix is added to the first and second person singular of this pronoun, with a little variation of the meaning; as,

gyah dī'a dyieh, I am by myself alone in successive instances; or, I am present by myself alone, now here, now there, and now in another place; or, from place to place, or from time to time, I am there alone.
 syah dī'a dyieh, thou art present by thyself alone in successive instances; &c.

Perhaps 'ha yah'di a dyieh,' (he, &c.,) is sometimes properly used in the same sense.

It should be remarked here, to, avoid mistakes, that 'agyah'di a'dyieh,' (from a suffix, probably 'i,' meaning full,) should be translated, 'I have been, and have finished, filling up the body; and so of the other forms of this pronoun. Perhaps this suffix is, after all, the same as used above in 'gyah di,' 'syah di,' &c., and the meaning in these cases is derived originally from the idea of fullness.

The accent is the principal means of distinguishing between these definitions.

When this suffix is joined with the dual and plural of 'gyah'da deh,' the meaning seems to be again slightly varied; as, a gi'yah'di a'dyieh, one of us two at a time; each of us two separately in turn, (speaking to others.)

ji yah'di a'dyieh, each of you two separately in turn; &c.

[The plural of 'gyah'da deh,' was accidentally omitted in arranging the pages: it should follow the dual, at the bottom of p. 95, which see. It is as follows:

dwa yah'da deh, we, us; (speaking together.)
a gwa'yah da deh, we, us; (speaking of ourselves.)
swa yah'da deh, ye, you.

ha di'yah da deh, they, them; (masculine plural.)
wa di'yah da deh, they, them; (feminine and animal plural.)
o di'yah da deh, they, them; (animal plural.)]

dwa yah'di a'dyieh, each of us separately in turn.
swa yah'di a'dyieh, each of you separately in turn; &c.

This suffix sometimes follows the suffix 'noh,' (see p. 100,) and in such cases the 'h' in 'noh' is omitted, and the 'a' in 'a dyieh' takes the nasal sound, or the sound of 'n,' apparently for the sake of euphony; as,

de yu'di yah'hih deh, it causes a hindrance, it makes a difficulty;

de yu'di yāh'hih da'nōh, there are difficulties, one after another;
 de yu'di yāh'hih da'nō an dyiēh, difficulties one by one are following on successively after each other.

Sometimes the letter 's' is added to the 'dyiēh' to express the idea of habitual or continual occurrence.

Most of the suffixes introduced into this article admit of variations to express past and future time, which will be explained under the head of verbal suffixes.

VII.—Indefinite Pronouns.

gye, some; (applied principally to things, but sometimes to persons.)

gi yeh', some; (applied to persons.)

gā'o nyōh, some, here and there one; (applied to both persons and things.)

gwā'o nyōh, or, o gwā'o nyōh, some, sometimes, here and there a little.

gā'an dyiēh, some, sometimes, one after another. (These three last words are from 'gā,' (it is,) and the suffixes 'nyōh,' and 'a'dyiēh;' and might have been classed with the distributive pronouns, but in some of their uses they correspond more closely with the indefinite, and are therefore inserted here.)

os toh', some, a little.

os toh'shōh, but little, just a little, only a little.

ni yō', some, a little, a few, a small number.

ni jō', there is but little remaining.

o yah', other, another.

gat gaah'ni gaah, any one, either, whichever.

ga'an di gwa ni gaah, any one, either, whichever, whichever.

These two last are sometimes distributive and sometimes indefinite.

LESSON LXVIII.

OF WORDS USED TO DENOTE THE QUALITIES OF THINGS;

called, in English Grammar,

ADJECTIVES.

- 'wīyu, good.
 wa e't'gāh, bad.
 oh skas', good, fit, convenient, suitable.
 gvs dvk', profitable, useful.
 ga dās', thick.
 het'gāh, high.
 i yos, long.
 go wa'nāh, great, large.
 ni wah'aah, small.
 ni wak'aah, short.
 o'dit, rough.
 oh hā', dry.
 òs deh, heavy.
 o dāānt', wretched.
 òt gōh', poison,
 oh sā', fat.
 òt gòs', raw.
 wa seh', new.
 wa'ga yoh' old, ancient.
 we āh, far.
 dus gā'oh, near, nigh.
 a'qh esvt, joyous, joyful.
 a wēn'dit gāā'deh, pleasant, funny, delightful.
 o yān'det, plain, manifest.
 o dqh'hon dqh, abundant, multitudinous.
 jās dah'āh, black.
 o nō'wah dah'āh, white.
 o'yah āh, blue, sky colour.

gwǎh tǎh ǎh, red.
 jit gwǎh'ǎh, yellow.
 ga gǎ'ǎnt, white.
 o nǒk'deh, painful.
 ga gwe'gǒh, all.
 de yiu'is gwat, slippery.
 de yu dǒ'ǎn jǒ'ǒh, needful, necessary, desirable.
 duh gaah'ah, few, not many.
 ga nǒ'ǒh, hard, difficult, precious, valuable.
 de ja'ǒh, both.
 de yut'hweh nǒ nih, round.
 de yus'hak dǒǒh, crooked, bent.
 de yut'yuk dah'ǒh, dull.
 o ni yǒh', hard, firm, durable.
 ga gaas'deh, durable, permanent.
 neh huh'jih, right, proper.
 tga ye'ih, right, perfect.
 o dǒ'gǎh dǒh, straight, &c.

Comparison of Adjectives.

This is effected, not as in English, by changes in the word itself, but by adding or prefixing other separate words ; as,

wi yu', good ;
 a gwus wi yu', very good ;
 he yu'gǒh sǒt' wi yu', exceedingly good ;
 oh dyu'deh sǎ'is wi yu', unusually good ;
 oh sǎ'is dǒh wi yu', extremely good ;
 oh' ǎ'ǎh duk' wi yu, surpassingly good ;
 syi gwa'di ah wi yu', illimitably good.
 syi gwa'deh jih wi yu', good beyond all bounds, &c.

we suh' wi yu', very good. But when two things are spoken of in comparison, 'we suh' is applied to the better of the two ; as, 'we suh wi yu' hoi gǎ,' this is better than that.

wi yu nǎ gǎ nae hoi gǎ, this is good rather than that.
 òs toh' wi yu', or, wi yu' òs toh', a little good.

The Superlative degree is sometimes expressed by a circumlocution equivalent to 'nothing like it;' as,

He is the best man I ever saw. De'wän dōh' deh e'yat-gaat'hwäh sō gaah, neh shah gaat he'ni o'gweh di'yu, i. e., I never saw a man like him, or equal to him in respect to being a good man; &c.

Composition of Adjectives.

A large proportion, perhaps most, of the Adjectives in the Seneca admit of being compounded with nouns; and after being compounded, take on the same suffixes and prefixes which either noun or adjective admit before composition.

The general rule of composition appears to be, to drop all which follows the initial consonant of the last syllable of the noun, and also the initial consonant of the adjective, and then suffix the latter to the former; as,

o gweh'dah, person, (see p. 85,) and wi yu, good.
 o gweh'di yu, good person.
 ho gweh'di yu, he is a good man.
 ya go'gweh di yu, she is a good woman.
 ho gweh'di yu'nah, he was a good man; &c.

o gweh'dah, person, (see as before p. 85,) wa et'gäh, bad.
 o gweh'da et'gäh, bad person.
 ho gweh'da et'gäh, he is a bad person.
 ya go'gweh da et'gäh, she is a bad person.
 ya go'gweh da et'gak, she was a bad person; &c.

So a'so :

ga noh'si yu, a good house; from ga noh söt, house, and wi yu.
 ga ya'dos hi'yu, a good book; from ga ya'dos häh, book, writing; and wi yu; (used for the Bible.)

This word, like most others which end in 'häh,' or 'shäh,' is frequently spoken as if written, 'ga ya'doh-chi'yu.' It is difficult now to ascertain which form is the purest Seneca, as both are used by old men and good speakers.

ga gan'yas hi'yu, or ga gan'yañ chi'yu, a good knife; from ga gan'yañ shäh, knife, and wi yu.
ga yañ'di yu, it is handsome, it has a good body, or good form, (spoken of animals); from o yañ'dah, body, (whence 'ga yañ'dah,' its body,) and wi yu.

In compounds of 'ga deñ,' the 'deñ,' is dropped from the end of the noun before suffixing the adjective; as,

o a'deñ, road, path;
o a'iyu, a good road, a good path;
o a'e'tgäh, a bad road, a bad path.

Adjectives which commence with the syllable 'ni,' prefix it to the noun to which they are added in composition; as,

ni wah'aah, little, small;
o i'wah, matter, thing;
ni yiu'i wah'aah, a little matter or thing.
ni ga'ya dōh'shäh aah', a little book.
ni ga'noh sah'aah, a little house.
ni ga'yañ dah'aah, a little creature, (spoken of animals,) i. e., it has a little body.

Perhaps this 'ni,' is in reality derived from 'ne,' and therefore takes the place which 'ne' would occupy in similar circumstances.

There are several adjectives now used in composition, which cannot be traced back to their original forms. They appear as suffixes with a uniform adjective meaning; as,

ga nq̄'sah, or ga nq̄'sòt, house ;
 ga nq̄'ses, long house ;
 ga nq̄'ses gēh, at the long house ; (frequently spoken as if written 'ga nq̄'sis gēh.')

Commonly used for Council House. because the council houses were generally built of twice the ordinary proportional length of common houses.

ga yah'des, long body. From 'ga yah'dah,' its body ;
 'nān dah ni ga'yah des,' its body is so long.

There is a strong tendency among the younger class of Indians to change the vowel sound of this suffix into 'i,' as if the word was written 'ni ga'yah di,' instead of 'ni ga'yah des,' but this is a corruption of the language.

ga wis'dah, cup ;
 ga wis'di, full cup, or cup full.

gas heh'dah, bottle ;
 gas heh'di, full bottle, or bottle full ; used also to mean one quart.

ga nq̄'sah, or ga nq̄'sòt, house ;
 ga nq̄'si, full house, &c.

oh do'gwas hāh, spoon, ladle ;
 oh do'gwah chi, full spoon, following the rule noticed above, under 'ga ya dq̄h shāh,' and 'wi yu.' (p. 110.)

So also,

gak'chi, a plate full, a dish full ; from an obsolete root meaning dish, plate, &c.

Adjectives are sometimes turned into nouns expressive of the abstract qualities which they denote, by prefixing to them the article 'ne' ; as,

ne wi'yu, the good, or, the goodness.

ne' wa et'gãh, the bad, or the badness; &c.

So also, they are made verbs, by the use of verbal prefixes and suffixes; as, ã wi'yuh het, it will become good, or it will make good; (i. e., some object.)

ã wa'et gânt, or ã ga'et gânt, it will become bad, or, it will make bad, corrupt, spoil; (i. e., some object.) But this matter will be more fully explained under the head of Verbal Prefixes and Suffixes.
